JAKE ARNOLD

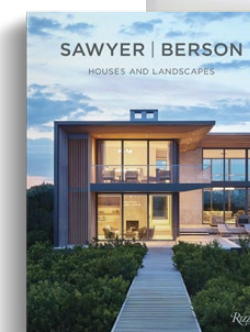

Jake Arnold didn't let a lack of formal design training stop him from starting his own design studio in 2020. After designing homes for stars like Aaron Paul, Rashida Jones, Katy Perry and John Legend and Chrissy Teigen, the English-born designer is publishing his first book, Jake Arnold: Redefining Comfort (Rizzoli), out this September. "In terms of clients, my dream scenario is always a high level of collaboration," explains the designer. "I love when clients come with ideas but are also interested in exploring and expanding on those ideas together. I'm really drawn to mixing vintage and traditional with contemporary and modern elements to create an environment that feels lived-in and timeless."

SAWYER | BERSON

Since 1999, Sawyer | Berson, founded by Brian Sawyer and John Berson, has been a leading force in architecture, landscape and interior design (famous clients include Julianne Moore and Bette Midler). As revealed in Sawyer | Berson: Houses and Landscapes (Rizzoli), the design duo achieves a careful balancing act between classical and contemporary styles to create inspired and informed interior, exterior and garden spaces that are reflective of the client and how they live, from a colonial revival to a modernist abode. "What John, myself and our team love about our work is that all our projects are as fascinating and different as each of our clients," says Sawyer. "For nearly 25 years, we have been toggling back and forth between modern and traditional styles and everything in between for our houses, gardens and interiors. It has been a fantastic journey and continues to be so every day."
